

Q2 2

Lack of growth in demand continues to weigh the office market down

- Yet another quarter of below-average leasing activity pushes vacancy up to 24.5%, marking the 14th consecutive quarter of rising vacancy.
- With only 176,000 square feet of deliveries year-to-date, 2018 is set to be the market's lightest in terms of new development since 2010.
- The Galleria submarket led all submarkets in terms of positive absorption for the second quarter in a row while the CBD and Katy Freeway West brought up the rear.

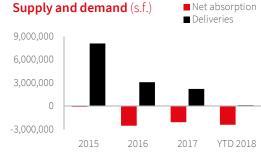

Houston's office market continued to face familiar headwinds in the form of subdued leasing activity, rising vacancy, and softening rental rates during the second quarter of 2018. Of these three trends, stagnant leasing demand has had the greatest effect on the market. Since the close of 2014, leasing activity in Houston has surpassed four million square feet just two times in fourteen quarters, with Q2 2018 not among those two occurrences. In contrast, from Q3 2011 to Q4 2014 leasing activity surpassed four million square feet in every quarter and even eclipsed five million square feet five times. Unsurprisingly, this slowdown in leasing activity has pushed total vacancy up for fourteen consecutive quarters, resulting in an increase from 13.4% in Q4 2014 to 24.5% currently.

While the demand side continues to beset the market with excess space, the supply side remains a relative non-factor. The development pipeline currently stands at just under 1.5 million square feet, which is well below the market's long-term average of 4.3 million square feet. Additionally, 2018 is on course to be the market's lightest year in terms of new development since 2010 with only 176,000 square feet of new deliveries year-to-date and only 503,000 square feet in total expected to deliver in 2018.

Outlook

Despite a few early signs of improving market conditions ahead as seen by flattening concession packages and strong performance in select submarkets, such as the Galleria, through the first half of 2018, the Houston office market has a long way to go before it returns to a balanced market. Moving forward, we expect market conditions to continue to favor tenants through the remainder of 2018 as leasing demand remains muted and the market absorbs the oversupply of space which has nearly doubled the amount of vacancy since the close of 2014.

Q1 2018
Office Insight

Continued oversupply of space looms as tenant concessions reach their peak

- After rising steadily over the past three years, concessions such as free rent and tenant improvement allowances have begun to plateau, yet remain at elevated levels.
- Sluggish tenant demand to start the year pushes vacancy up to 23.8%, which represents the thirteenth consecutive quarter of rising vacancy.
- The Galleria submarket was one of the few bright spots in Q1, where fundamentals showed improvement.

Since the fourth quarter of 2014, the Houston office market has been characterized by rising vacancy rates, flattening asking rents, growing concession packages, and a glut of sublease space. While vacancy rates and asking rents maintained these trajectories through the first quarter of 2018, concessions appear to be leveling off as more tenants engage the market to take advantage of favorable lease terms. Free rent in the neighborhood of 12 to 15 months on a ten-year deal is not uncommon for Class A space as well as tenant improvement allowances north of $50.00 per s.f.. However, such generous concession packages will not remain indefinitely, particularly as the development pipeline tapers off, sublease space is absorbed, and the newest, most efficient space is leased.

Despite the continued uptick in vacancy, lack of growth in asking rents, and oversupply of sublease space across the market, there was one submarket that bucked each of the aforementioned trends. The Galleria was the only submarket in Houston to experience a decrease in vacancy, an increase in asking rents, and a decrease in sublease space. Additionally, leasing activity in the submarket improved by nearly 60.0% quarter-over-quarter, thanks to Apache's 515,000 s.f. renewal at Post Oak Central and several full-floor deals.

Outlook

Although there are signs of improving market conditions ahead as seen by flattening concession packages and strong performance in some areas in the first quarter, the Houston office market has a long way to go before it returns to a balanced market. As such, we expect market conditions to continue to favor tenants through the remainder of 2018 as leasing activity remains muted and the market absorbs the oversupply of space which has pushed vacancy from 14.9% in YE 2014 to 23.8% in Q1 2018.

Q4 2017
Office Insight

Growing appetite for sublease space not enough to balance supply-heavy market conditions

- At 2.8 million square feet, sublease leasing activity accounted for nearly one-fourth of all leasing activity in 2017, the highest share on record.
- New deliveries and limited growth among tenants pushed total vacancy to 23.2 percent during the fourth quarter, which marks the twelfth consecutive quarter of rising vacancy.
- Minimal movement of asking rents masks growing concession packages offered by some landlords, particularly in the CBD and Galleria.

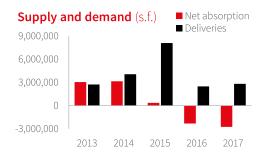

If 2016 was the year sublease space languished on the market, then 2017 was the year leasing activity finally began to make a dent in the mountain of available sublease space. Sublease leasing activity totaled 2.8 million square feet in 2017, a 46.5 percent increase over 2016's total, and accounted for nearly one-fourth of all leasing activity in 2017, compared to 14.8 percent of total leasing activity in 2016. NRG's 431,000-square-foot deal at One Shell Plaza, Motiva's 193,000-square-foot deal at Allen Center, and Stewart Title's 156,000-square-foot deal at Four Oaks Place led the charge for a banner year of sublease activity. The uptick in sublease activity, coupled with natural expirations, helped reduce the market's sublease inventory by more than 2.3 million square feet in 2017, which currently stands at 9.3 million square feet.

However, the boom in sublease leasing activity was not enough to counteract a market weighed down by supply-heavy conditions. Vacancy rose by 40 basis points to 23.2 percent during the fourth quarter following 460,000 square feet of new deliveries and yet another quarter of below average leasing activity. The excess in supply continues to place pressure on landlords to increase concession packages, namely in the form of free rent and tenant improvement allowances, while asking rents have remained flat.

Outlook

Since the fourth quarter of 2014, which roughly coincides with the downturn in oil prices, market conditions in Houston have experienced significant changes, particularly on the supply side of things: vacancy is up 970 basis points, net absorption has been negative in 9 of the last 12 quarters, and over 13.0 million square feet of new construction has delivered. Returning to a more balanced market will take time, and while 2017 showed glimpses of improving conditions, we look to 2018 to address the market's supply overhang.

Q3 2017
Office Insight

Sluggish tenant demand props up vacancy rate

- Hurricane Harvey's impact on Houston's office inventory was far less pronounced than other property types such as single-family residential.
- Spurred on by NRG's 431,000 square foot sublease deal at One Shell Plaza, strong sublet leasing activity during the third quarter helped to reduce Houston's sublease inventory for the fourth consecutive quarter.
- High-profile portfolio sales such as Greenway Plaza and Houston Center fuel office sales activity as investors re-enter the market.

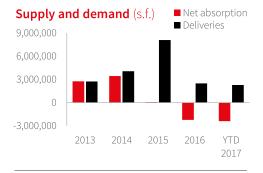

Despite a handful of 100,000 square foot plus deals signed, including NRG's 431,000 square foot sublease deal at One Shell Plaza and Motiva's 173,000 square foot deal at Two Allen Center, leasing activity remained muted during the third quarter and failed to surpass its ten-year quarterly average for the seventh consecutive quarter. As a result, total vacancy climbed for the eleventh quarter in a row, rising 40 basis points to 22.8 percent. The over abundance of available space has afforded tenants ample leverage during lease negotiations, yet there is little organic growth taking place as the majority of tenants in the market appear content with their current footprint. This is best evidenced by the market's paltry average deal size of 4,700 square feet during the quarter.

Even with the continued slowdown in leasing activity and rising vacancy, investors have re-entered the Houston market in a big way, as office sales volume is up over 430 percent from 2016. The dramatic uptick in office sales activity is led by three large portfolio transactions: Spear Street Capital's $274 million acquisition of Columbia Property Trust's Houston portfolio, TH Real Estate, Silverpeak & CPPIB's $512 million 49.0 partial interest acquisition of Greenway Plaza from Parkway Properties, and Brookfield's reported $875 million acquisition of Houston Center from J.P. Morgan Asset Management.

Outlook

Market indicators such as total vacancy, net absorption, and asking rental rates have provided few chances for a positive reading on the market since 2014, and while we are encouraged by the steady drop in the sublease inventory over the past four quarters, the Houston market has a long way to go before it returns to a balanced market. Moving forward, we expect market conditions to favor tenants for the remainder of 2017 and well into 2018.

Limited tenant demand drags down market; limited new supply provides hope for stabilization

- Consolidations and space give-backs result in sixth consecutive quarter of negative net absorption.
- Construction resumes at Capitol Tower following Bank of America's 210,000 square foot pre-leasing commitment.
- Asking rents remain largely unchanged despite total vacancy rising over 325 basis points year-over-year. Start and effective rents have trended downward and concessions are still on the rise.

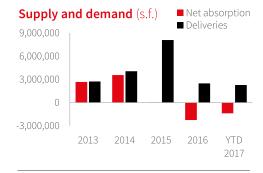

Since the fourth quarter of 2014, leasing activity in Houston has lagged behind its ten-year quarterly average of 3.8 million square feet in nine of the past ten quarters. Unfortunately, the second quarter of 2017 was among the nine underperformers. As a result of the slowdown in tenant demand, total vacancy has risen in each of the past ten quarters, rising from a healthy 13.5 percent in the fourth quarter of 2014 to a decade-high 22.4 percent. Additionally, the market added over 12.8 million square feet of new office product and a nearly identical amount of sublease space over this same time. This imbalance on both the demand and supply sides of the equation has placed a great deal of pressure on the market to say the least.

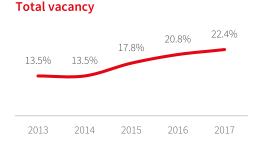

While a great deal of work remains to be done on the demand side, the market has taken several important steps towards stabilizing the supply side. Most notably, the market's available sublease inventory contracted for the third consecutive quarter to 11.1 million square feet during the second quarter, which represents a decrease of over 1.1 million square feet from its peak. Further, at 2.3 million square feet, the construction pipeline is now at its lowest level since the first quarter of 2012 and well below its ten-year quarterly average of 4.7 million square feet.

Outlook

Rectifying six consecutive quarters of negative net absorption and ten consecutive quarters of rising vacancy will not happen overnight, especially given the recent performance of the market from a leasing activity perspective. As a result, we expect office market conditions in Houston to persist for the remainder of 2017 as tenant demand remains muted and the possibility of a market recovery taking shape in 2018 and 2019 should significant demand return.

Q1 2017
Office Insight

Office market looks to reset its course in 2017 and beyond

- Large blocks of space continue to arrive to market; nine 100K+ square foot blocks added in the first quarter of 2017.
- Sublease inventory contracts for second consecutive quarter, 11.3 million square feet still available for lease.
- Construction pipeline down to 3.3 million square feet in the first quarter of 2017.

Market conditions in Houston to start 2017 by and large mirrored how the market closed out 2016. Total vacancy rose for the ninth consecutive quarter to 20.9 percent in the first quarter, largely as a result of Freeport McMoRan's decision to vacate 355,000 square feet of space at 717 Texas Avenue. Net absorption remained negative for the fifth consecutive quarter, seeing 512,172 square feet of net move-outs in the first quarter. Average asking rents fell by 1.0 percent quarter-over-quarter, while concessions such as free rent and tenant improvement allowances continued to rise.

However, in the face of sustained headwinds, a few emerging trends provide hope for a shift in market conditions in quarters to come. Total sublease space on the market contracted for the second consecutive quarter to start the year and now stands at 11.3 million square feet overall. This represents a nearly 900,000 square foot drop in sublease space in the past two quarters after peaking at 12.2 million square feet in the third quarter of 2016. Additionally, the construction pipeline is now at its lowest level since the third quarter of 2012, which should ease some of the supply side problems facing the market at present.

Outlook

Given that leasing activity has underperformed its ten-year quarterly average of 3.7 million square feet in each of the past five quarters, there is no question that the market has its work cut out on the demand side. Conversely, the supply side provides for a more optimistic reading of the market, as nearly three-quarters of the 3.3 million square feet currently under construction is set to deliver in 2017, of which 61.1 percent is pre-leased. Moving forward, we expect market conditions to continue on their current paths in 2017, albeit at a less pronounced pace than what the market experienced in 2015 and 2016.

Houston | Q4 2016

Healing sublease inventory offset by pain elsewhere

Sublease inventory contracts for the first time since Q3 2014

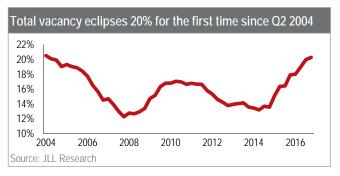

Following eight consecutive quarters of expansion, the Houston office sublease inventory decreased in size during the fourth quarter, dropping from 12.4 million square feet in Q3 to 11.9 million s.f. in Q4. Much of the drop is attributed to ConocoPhillips decision to relocate their Houston headquarters to Energy Center Four, a 597,000-square-foot Class A building located in the Energy Corridor that was formerly available for sublease. Additionally, Q4 also brought with it the two largest sublease deals of the year, Breitburn Energy's 109,000-square-foot deal at Heritage Plaza and Thompson & Knight's 60,000-square-foot deal at BG Group Place. Moving forward, the sublease inventory will likely continue to contract in 2017.

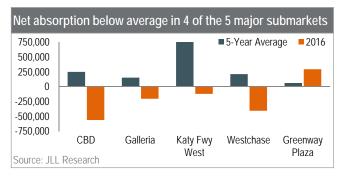

Due in large part to a weak showing in leasing activity, which was approximately 54.0 percent below its 10-year quarterly average of 3.7 million square feet, market-wide total vacancy reached 20.3 percent during the fourth quarter. The total vacancy rate has been steadily on the rise since the fourth quarter of 2014. During this time, total leasing activity has lagged behind its 10-year quarterly average in seven of the eight quarters and the total vacancy rate has risen for eight consecutive quarters. Given the slowdown in leasing demand, the total vacancy rate is anticipated to remain at elevated levels in 2017.

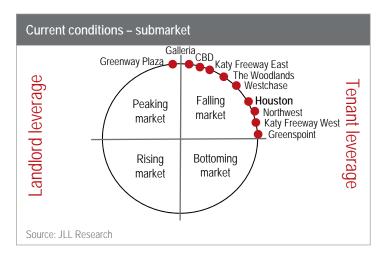

Prominent submarkets account for bulk of negative net absorption in 2016 With the exception of Greenway Plaza, net absorption among the top five largest submarkets in Houston severely lagged behind their respective five-year averages, falling behind by an average of -119.0 percent. The weak performance of the major submarkets all but assured that the office market would record its second consecutive year of negative net absorption, which marks the first time that this has happened since 2002. Energy sector move-outs lay at the heart of the issue in 2016, as low oil prices drove many energy sector tenants to reduce their headcounts, place excess space on the sublease market and later vacate their space.

Market unable to shake the grip of sublease inventory

Spread between Class A & B rental rates tightens

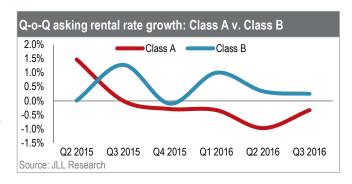

Since the second quarter of 2015, the spread between Class A and B direct asking rental rates has decreased by 778 basis points. Over that time, Class A rents have posted negative growth in four out of five quarters while Class B rents have seen positive growth in four out of five quarters. Underpinning the divergent rental rate movements of these two classes is the fact that 77.3 percent of the 12.2 million square feet of sublease space on the market is comprised of Class A space. As a result, Class A landlords must compete with subleases for tenants more so than Class B landlords. Moving forward, this trend is likely to continue as leasing activity within the Class A inventory remains subdued.

CBD leasing activity rebounds following tepid Q2 performance

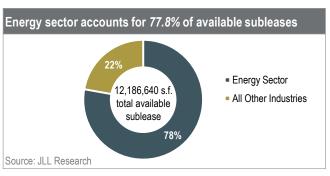

Buoyed by United Airlines' 237,000-square-foot lease at 609 Main, the CBD experienced a significant uptick in leasing activity during the third quarter, as total volume increased from 158,000 square feet in Q2 to 637,000 square feet. Other notable CBD lease transactions include Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe's 57,000-square-foot lease at 609 Main, Hogan Lovells' 43,000-square-foot lease also at 609 Main, Edison, McDowell & Hetherington's 27,000-square-foot sublease at 1001 Fannin, and Tellurian Investments' 25,000-square-foot renewal at 1201 Louisiana.

Move-outs in sublease space pushes net absorption deeper into the red

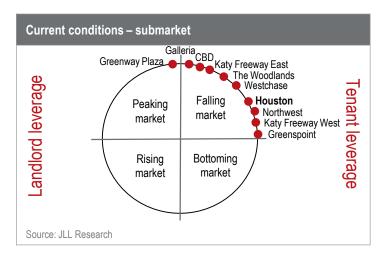

Following the decision of several energy sector companies like BG Group, Freeport McMoRan, and Phillips 66 to vacate blocks of space at their available subleases, net absorption remained negative during the third quarter at -789,872 square feet. In fact, these three companies alone accounted for nearly a quarter of the total negative net absorption in Q3. Additionally, Shell recently announced that they will be vacating their namesake tower in the CBD, with their entire 877,000-square-foot space remaining available for sublease. With the energy sector responsible for 77.8 percent of available subleases market-wide, much of which is still officially listed as occupied, sublease outflows are anticipated to contribute toward negative net absorption for quarters to come.

Houston | Q2 2016

Vacancy moves higher amid weak activity

Sublease space continues its mount

The sublease inventory has more than doubled since the fourth quarter of 2014, with over 10.8 million square feet of sublease space currently available. Much of the sublease glut is attributed to energy sector companies, which, prior to the recent downturn in the price of oil took down large blocks of space with plans for expansion only to find themselves needing to shed the excess space months later. In fact, all twenty of the top twenty largest sublease listings are being offered by energy sector companies. The hyper-supply of sublease space is creating opportunities for tenants searching for high quality space with favorable terms.

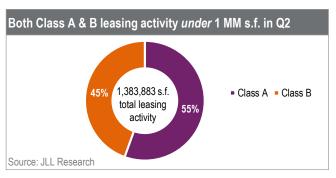

Although much of the 3.1 million square feet of new construction delivered thus far in 2016 was preleased, over 1.0 million square feet delivered without preleasing commitments. Such was the case at Energy Center Five, a 524,000-square-foot Class A development that delivered 100 percent vacant during the second quarter. As a result, total vacancy ticked up to 18.5 percent during the second quarter, up from 17.6 percent seen in the first quarter. Fortunately, developers have by and large tabled plans for future projects until preleasing requirements are achieved.

Leasing demand unable to keep pace with supply

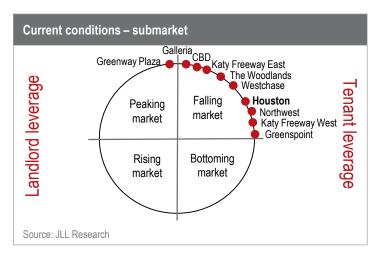

Despite 44.2 million square feet of office space available for lease – which comes out to 26.6 percent of all existing and under construction space – Houston failed to surpass 1.5 million square feet of total leasing activity for the first time in the last 15 years. For total availability to stabilize below 20.0 percent again, leasing activity would need to increase to 2.9 million square feet for each of the next four quarters. Although 2.9 million square feet may appear to be a stretch on the surface, the market has averaged over 3.7 million square feet in leasing activity per quarter for the past ten years, meaning the market could underperform its ten year average for the next four quarters and still see a return to sub 20.0 percent availability. This of course assumes no new surge in sublease space coming to market.

2016 begins with continued market downturn

New large blocks of sublease space arrive and add pressure to market 2016 continues at a record pace in terms of sublease space in Houston's office market, with companies such as Shell, BHP Billiton and Technip adding 100,000 square feet or more to the market during the first quarter. These additions give Houston a record 9.4 million square feet of sublease options, while continued downsizing and M&A by energy firms in 2016 are expected to add additional space to market to push the total to close to 10 million square feet by year-end. Additionally, a decrease in both direct and sublease leasing velocity has total available space within the market to an all time high of 24.0 percent of stock. The combination of these factors, along with 2.7 million square feet of still to be leased new deliveries will push market vacancy to near 20.0 percent by the end of 2016 and mark the beginning of a challenging year for Houston's office market.

Building sales activity reflects a concerned market

A combination of oil price concerns and job losses continue to cause pullbacks in the market, and the effects were seen peripherally in office sales activity. While the number of buildings trading hands remained the same as the prior quarter, there was a marked shift in size and class toward smaller Class B trades. The lack of Class A asset transactions is reflective of a market in flux, with buildings owners largely taking a cautious approach to putting Class A or Trophy assets on the market. As these buildings, for the most part, have solid tenant bases and limited roll, building owners are content to sit on the sidelines and wait out the market uncertainty as opposed to putting an asset on the market and not finding the demand and transaction terms to their liking.

Market and tenants cautious as "Trough" questions remain

West Texas Intermediate oil, a benchmark for American oil production, rebounded over the prior 90 days, holding near $40/bbl during the quarter. While this represents an increase over year-end 2015, the impact has yet to be felt in the market. Leasing activity overall remained sub 2.0 million square feet during the quarter, with only 11 leases greater than 20,000 square feet executed and minimal activity among tenants new to the market. 9.1 million square feet of tenants in the market await the answer to the question of has the Houston market reached it's trough? Once answered, Houston may see companies begin to re-enter the market to take advantage of the tenant-favorable status it holds in 2016 and 2017.

3 total building sales occurred in Q1 2016

Only Class B activity occurred in Q1 2016 totaling

$76.8 million

Houston Q4 2015

2015 closes in the red as oil volatility catches up

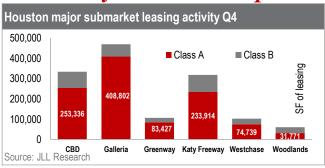

Limited pockets of activity not enough to offset significant losses in 2015 2015 concluded as an uneven but eventful year for Houston's office market with positive events in the fourth quarter that helped lessen the impact of the decelerating Houston office market. After a 370 basis point jump in vacancy year-over-year resulting in the first annual net occupancy loss since 2010, asking rental rates saw growth of 1.7 percent and several large leases were signed during the quarter. Additionally, despite the infusion of over 8.7 million square feet of new inventory, vacancy remained in the mid-teens. Whether silver linings such as these continue into 2016 remains to be seen, as oil prices are to remain under $50.00 a barrel and Houston's job growth is forecasted to be weak.

The spigot is turned off on the construction faucet

As M&A activity and right-sizing by companies contribute to a dramatic slowdown in leasing, a secondary (and welcome) result is the abrupt halt of new construction starts within Houston both on a build-to-suit and speculative basis. This time last year, Houston accounted for nearly 20.0 percent of all the office buildings under construction within the United States; today that number is roughly half. To further illustrate how dramatic construction has halted, when completions slated for 2016 are removed, less than 1.6 million square feet remain in the pipeline to be delivered in 2017 and 2018; making them the lightest delivery years since the recession. Looking ahead, with the inventory of direct and available sublease space growing, the likelihood of new office projects breaking ground in 2016 is slim, barring those tenants who opt for the build-to-suit route.

Building sales activity gives some positive momentum to 2015

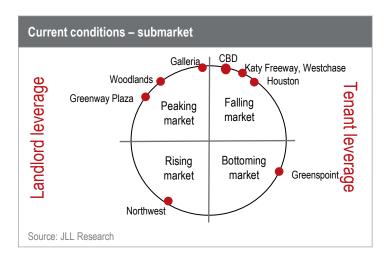

Prices for West Texas Intermediate oil, the benchmark for American oil production, fell by roughly 31.0 percent during 2015. With Houston so deeply tied to the energy sector, the impact has been far-reaching. However, 2015 remained a solid year for office sales transactions. By year-end, nearly $2.0 billion in building sales were inked in 38 transactions. Notably, the fourth quarter saw a few Class A buildings trade over $500 per square foot including 2200 Post Oak in the Galleria submarket ($527 per square foot) and 935 N. Eldridge in the Energy Corridor ($503 per square foot). Investors still have a steady appetite for well-tenanted office buildings in Houston despite volatility in the energy market.

Houston Q3 2015

Market holds its breath as fundamentals turn

Net absorption turns negative for the first time since Q3 2010

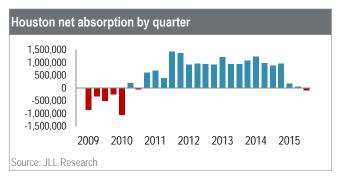

Unable to extend its streak to twenty consecutive quarters of positive net absorption, the Houston office market experienced 87,904 square feet of negative net absorption in the third quarter. Class B properties bore the brunt of the impact, conceding nearly 225,000 square feet in occupancy losses while Class A properties remained in the black, posting 135,108 square feet of positive net absorption this quarter. Ten of the 20 largest submarkets notched negative net absorption, resulting in a 100 basis point bump in total vacancy. In the face of near-daily job loss announcements and, consequently, slowing deal velocity, downsizing, and a spike in subleases, the Houston office market has reached an inflection point.

Leasing activity decelerates further after a record low second quarter

Coupled with negative net absorption, third quarter leasing activity numbers shine an ominous light on a market in flux. The Houston office market saw a 44.0 percent decrease in leasing activity during the third quarter (1,529,476 square feet) when compared to the second quarter (2,710,011 square feet). To put that into perspective, leasing activity for the second quarter of this year was the eighth lowest in the last fifteen years. First? The third quarter of this year. Historically, the Houston office market has averaged 4 million square feet of leasing activity per quarter. As 10 million square feet of new office product looms in the pipeline, a dramatic and sustained jump in leasing activity will be required to avoid a full-scale market meltdown.

Increased M&A further impacts energy jobs and market sentiment

As oil prices remained in the $40 to $45/bbl range, Houston's office market continues to absorb job cuts associated with the declining energy sector. From Fortune 500 companies like Chevron and Conoco Phillips down to smaller independent E&P firms, this round of cuts has begun to impact office-intensive white collar positions. Additionally, new M&A activity between companies such as Energy Transfer and Williams likewise influences the Houston office market as these companies begin to give back space in their existing buildings or no longer take space in buildings under construction. Either way, it adds up to additional impending vacancy within the market.

Only 38% of 2014's leasing activity is accounted for through Q3 2015.

Shifted dynamics offer opportunities in market

Office economics changed by energy impact

As the reality of $60/bbl oil prices and the corresponding job cuts continue to take effect in Houston, the office market has begun to mirror the initial recovery from the 2009-10 financial crisis. While absorption has slowed from the 900K s.f. on average over the past 14 quarters and sublease space coming to market continues to climb, tenant concessions such as free rent and TI allowances have begun to increase. While published rental rates throughout the city have yet to be impacted, on a street level basis landlords are having to be creative and flexible in terms of strike rents in order to get a lease signed.

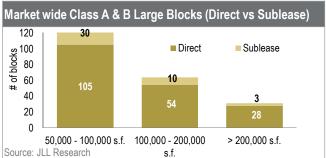

Large blocks become more prevalent thanks to M&A and slowing leasing With large scale M&A activity in the market being triggered by such firms as Halliburton, Shell and Enterprise, the number of large blocks of space has begun to spike within the Houston market in both Class A and B buildings. With nearly nine million square feet of combined new construction and sublease space potentially arriving vacant to market over the next 18 months and leasing activity remaining far below the halcyon days of 2012 and 2013, Houston is poised to see a significant jump in vacancy rates throughout a variety of submarkets in 2015 and 2016.

Tenants focusing on submarket and building opportunities

A slowing office market and an uncertain economy for the next 12 to 18 months has Houston's office tenants poised to utilize the leverage that this opportunity presents them in the upcoming quarters. While leasing activity has slowed, tenants with active requirements have remained growing across multiple business sectors. The strong demand caused by tenants with 2017 and 2018 expirations combined with Trophy, Class A vacancy rates in the single digits has created a new reality whereby tenant or landlord leverage is not being judged on a submarket by submarket basis, but rather a building by building basis.

Oil price impact begins to shift office market

Energy headlines impact office space

Following multiple oil and gas companies announcing cuts in capital spending budgets and planned layoffs, Houston's office market began to feel the brunt of the impact in the first quarter. As large scale tenants such as ConocoPhillips, Statoil, Sasol, and BP reduced their footprint in certain submarkets, over 2.5 million square feet of full-floor sublease space came online within the first three months. While some of this sublease space was expected roughly half came as a result of the cuts in upstream companies' capital budgets. Additionally, as small and mid-size E&P companies struggle to repay debt obligations and are forced to declare bankruptcy, additional office space will come to market through those proceedings or the increase in M&A activity that is expected in 2015.

2.5 MSF of Sublease space arrives in Q1 2015

Demand remains within pockets of Houston

While much of the activity and headlines in the first quarter reinforced the notion that Houston has begun to shift toward a tenant-favorable market, there remained a steady demand among the more tenant-diverse submarkets. In the first quarter leasing velocity remained on par year-over-year as more than 900,000 square feet of transactions signed. While velocity slowed in energy-dominant submarkets such as Katy Freeway and Westchase submarkets with a diverse tenant base such as Greenway Plaza, Galleria, and the CBD maintained active tenants in the market and will continue to do so even in a leaner 2015.

Construction pipeline slows significantly

Much of the discussion within the Houston market in the past 24 to 36 months has centered around the explosive growth of under construction and proposed buildings. As oil prices have continued to fall, development has come to a rapid halt within the market. While there is still in excess of 12.8 million square feet of space under construction, the next cycle of speculative development is not anticipated for 18 to 24 months. The combination of tighter construction financing and slower than anticipated job growth has given developers and investors pause in Houston.

Houston | Q4 2014

Strong 2014 tempered by oil price concerns

Crude Oil and OPEC dominate market discussion

Following OPEC's recent meeting and the resultant drop in WTI prices, the question on everyone's mind was the eventual impact on the local economy and CRE market. Once the dust settled, it is clear that Houston will experience a bump, but continue moving forward. Houston is still projected to add substantial new jobs in 2015 (approximately 63,000) as growth across many of the other sectors in Houston's economy make it clear that the economy is not as energy dependent as in the past. Job growth may not match prior years' record growth; however, this diversity, combined with a skilled workforce, and the manufacturing and petrochemical advantages that Houston have are poised to create absorption and leasing activity despite oil-based bumps and bruises.

Rents begin to flatten over much of Houston

Following multiple consecutive quarters of rapid rent growth across much of Houston's primary submarket, the fourth quarter of 2014 witnessed a flattening of rates. Of the eight submarkets reflected on the right, seven witnessed an approximate 2 to 3 percent drop in rental rates from third quarter 2014 to fourth quarter. While continued plateauing of rental rates in 2015 is expected, the key change within Houston submarkets will be landlords' realization that in order to maintain existing tenants and entice new tenants, they must be willing to make concessions on items such as free rent, work letter amounts, and on-site amenities costs, triggering a more neutral market over the next calendar years.

Houston's prime submarkets still viewed as superior investment

Although much of the recent discussion within Houston centers around the impact the drop in oil prices will have on the CRE markets from a rental perspective, on the investment front, Houston remains a premiere market. In addition to the recent 1000 Main transaction in the CBD setting a new Class A PSF record, other Class A properties, in such areas as Katy Freeway and Greenspoint, have seen robust activity and premiums being paid on Class A buildings over prices paid a mere two years ago. Going forward, Houston is expected to remain an investment market of choice as investors look for stable assets and opportunity during this energy price correction and recovery.
